

For the Talent & Development team
behind a complex group training engagement

When a specialized training request lands on your desk

The challenge is turning it into an engagement that fits the learners, the work, the schedule, and what comes after class. We help do the planning and coordination work many providers leave on your plate.

Our work begins on engagement day, not training day.

Led by veteran practitioners

Training is led by practitioners who understand the work behind the course material and can field the questions that come with it.

Planning Is Part of the Engagement

When the training request lands on your desk, we help shape the learner plan, delivery approach, and follow-up support before the first session is ever scheduled.

BEFORE TRAINING DAY

We help shape the plan before the first session.

One team. Multiple training levels.

Our self-assessment helps determine whether learners stay together or group by experience level.

A training plan aimed at the real need

We collaborate before training to understand the goals, expectations, and process work behind the request.

Flexible delivery options that fit the group

We shape the format, timing, session length, and schedule to fit nearly any training scenario.

DURING TRAINING

We deliver practical, customized learning.

Training customized to current or future work

Examples, discussion, and emphasis can reflect the process work your team is doing now or preparing to support.

Interactive learning that helps participants apply the material

Exercises, quizzes, and discussion help participants apply concepts as they learn.

Veteran practitioners who can handle the room

Experienced instructors can field questions, respond to scenarios, and connect the material to practical process work.

AFTER TRAINING

Support continues after the final session.

7 Continued access. Continued progress.

Membership and LMS access keep participants connected to free modules, BPMInstitute.org content, and practitioner guidance.

Start Before the Plan Is Perfect

Bring us the request as it stands. In the first conversation, we can help define the training approach, the moving parts, and the next steps.
